alfaview® Video Conferencing Systems scores again in data protection assessment by data protection authority

In its recently published orientation guide, the Data Protection and Freedom of Information Commissioner of Baden-Württemberg lists alfaview® as one of the few GDPR-compliant video conferencing solutions.

Due to the great interest in a data protection compliant use of video conferencing, the Data Protection and Freedom of Information Commissioner of Baden-Württemberg has assessed various video conferencing systems. Compared to other video conferencing providers, the GDPR-compliant alfaview® video conferencing software stands out in particular for the following reasons:

- ✓ very good privacy policy
- ✓ no data transfer to third countries
- ✓ no tracking of user data
- ✓ suitable for schools and authorities

At the beginning of the year, alfaview® already was awarded by the Data Protection and Freedom of Information Commissioner of Berlin in its assessment of various video conferencing providers. alfaview® was one of the few providers to receive the maximum of four green lights. Both on the legal and on the technical level, alfaview® scored with consistently green lights. No deficiencies were identified in the assessment of legal compliance.
